ME TO YOU

Michel Delforge is Professor of hematology and Clinical Head at the Department of Hematology at the University of Leuven.

He is an active member of several national and international societies in the field of hematology with a particular focus on multiple myeloma. He also serves on the board of the Leuven Stem Cell Institute, is reviewer for several international journals and has published more than 50 peer-reviewed papers in the field of hematology.

Joining the advisory committee of the 'Me to You' project is an honor, because innovation in treatment of hematological malignancies can only be achieved by stimulating basic, translational and clinical research.

Helping to identify the most interesting projects and top candidates gives me another opportunity to contribute indirectly to the progress in treatment of hematological diseases.
